Vice President's Letter

Being asked to write a letter to the members of our wonderful running club seemed like an invitation to quite an intimidating task until it dawned on me that it could be my opportunity to thank you all for what you do each and every day for me and hundreds of runners just like me.

I have only been running for six years, so I can still remember how I felt the first time I ran the Santa Fe Trail and was greeted with encouragement by total strangers running by. My first race was the 25th Anniversary Balloon Classic 5K where I placed third in my age group. I knew not one person in the group but their excitement over my achievement told me I was a part of a family. This feeling of family, or as Jon Cornick calls it, community, has continued on every run or every race, no matter where I am.

This past weekend, Don Johnson put on the Panoramic 1M, 2M and 4M run/walk in Bear Creek Park. All of the money raised goes to the Colorado Springs Deaf and Blind School. Working the race day registration was an absolute joy. I was thrilled with the way so many runners made it clear that they came out to support the school and each other. There was no charge for the kid's race and there was a discount for PPRR members, but so many of you just said, "Keep it. Give it to the kids." My heart glowed each and every time. There was a Dad who signed himself and his daughter up for the 1M run and when I asked if indeed meant to run the 1 miler he responded, "It is my daughter's first race and I want to run every step with her."

Another newbie caught the eye of several racers through his nervous excitement. He was afraid he was going to miss the start of the 2M race until someone took him under their care and showed him where to be. I know this was a small race (just over 100 runners) compared to most, but that just made it easier to see the wonderful heart our community of runners has and the caring and concern that you have for each other.

I ran into my chief competition at the Panoramic. I have chased Georgeanne Richardson in more races than I care to remember and yes, she beat me once again, but I absolutely love the idea that if I keep training there is a chance that one day, I may cross a finish line in front of her. I was talking to her and told her that that is my goal and I could tell that she was not offended in the least. She, like so many of you wants everyone to do the best they can, whether they come in ahead or behind you. Some claim that running is an individual sport, but those of us out there know how wrong that is. Every runner we meet in training or run with in races give us strength and support to go beyond what we would be capable of on our own. Thank you for carrying me up mountains and across finish lines.

From the Editor

A familiar joke has two runners in the woods encountering a bear. “You can’t out run a bear!” one shouts as his partner takes off. “I don’t have to,” she retorts. “I only have to run faster than you!”

This amusing story is often used to make a point: you have to stay ahead of your competition. In order to do that, of course, you must keep your eyes on your competition, be aware of where the next guy is at, and not allow them to get past. Whereas this might seem a perfectly logical approach to running as well as life, a little reflection belies a major flaw.

If you consistently finish in the top 5%, then perhaps this philosophy can work. You are not likely to underachieve by focusing on beating the fellow next to you. But for the other 95%, the likelihood is high indeed.

Have you ever done poorly in an event and yet looked at names below yours on the results sheet saying, “Well, at least I beat all these others.” Or, not uncommonly, we hear people say, “At least I wasn’t last!”

I’m usually somewhere ahead of mid-pack in most of my runs, so even though I never entertain thoughts of winning, I come in ahead of most. Is that good? Could I do better? As long as I focus on staying ahead of those around me, I’ll never know. That’s because they have their pace, their capabilities, and their own goals. And if I focus on just beating them, I’m de facto defining my goals and expectation by theirs—not my own.

A race like the Nielson Challenge is perfect counter to this trap. Anyone can win the event, even if they cross the finish in last place, as long as they improve their own time more than the next gal improved hers. Rather than “just finishing”, runners focus on doing better than they ever have before.

This brings to mind the matter of expectations, specifically of one’s self. This is the real moral of the story: how habitual expectations can trap us into mediocrity, and not just in running. Such expectations keep us from success in many spheres: dead-end jobs and bad relationships, for example. I am sure you have met or known people who suffer not from a lack of potential, but from a lack of imagination.

This is where you come in. You can help people think outside their box while breaking out of your own. The article on the Leadville Effect in this issue is a wonderful example of how, with the support and encouragement of others, what seemed impossible becomes doable, and what was unimaginable becomes the norm. Let it inspire you to reach out to others and allow them to reach out to you. As your VP, Micky Simpson writes, contrary to common perception, running is not a solitary sport.

the Long Run Long Ago

10 Years Ago

The July 1977 issue of the Long Run sports advice from Mike Diamond to teens on track versus cross country, eating before a race, and how to counter pre-race anxiety. No need to give up the chips and soda, he says. Marathoner and club president Larry Miller surprises himself by running the Sailin’ Shoes 5K, his shortest race in ages. Although he put in great effort for an 18:04 finish, he reports feeling “like I missed something: the last half of the race!” He had accidentally taken the turn for the 5K course and was forced to accept a harsh reality: “I, Larry, ran a 5K.” Dave Sorenson gives another travelogue in his usual humorous fashion on coming to terms with running in the humid climes of Miami. Nancy Hobbs writes a tribute to Diane Ruff-Farschman, avid PPRR runner and inspirational volunteer, who died from heart complications at the young age of 49.

20 Years Ago

Editor Michael Schenk writes in the July 1987 issue to race directors asking them to allow more time for beleaguered volunteer coordinator (and vice president) Diane Ruff to gather race volunteers...one week is not enough! He also reports that the Rawhide Marathon and 1/2 marathon in Fort Collins has been cancelled and that the Runner’s Roost is opening a Denver branch. Several events are promoted in the issue, including bike races and horse ride-a-thon, and race results appear for the All-Comers Track Meet, the Never Give Up Fun Run, the Creek to Springs Relay, the Who Done It Fun Run, and the IGIMAR (I’m Glad I Married a Runner) 5K, where married runners combine times with spouses...as long as it is someone else’s.

30 Years Ago

July 1977: editor Tim Ladewig reports the great success of the first Garden of the Gods 10M; with 320 runners participating it was the clubs most successful race ever. Charles Vigil won the event in 52:04 for the men, and Kim Hartman in 59:53 for the women. Richard DuCharme gives a long list of do’s and don’ts for hot-weather running. And Tim appeals to RD’s to get their race results to him on a timely basis...via phone. We also read of Jerry Donley’s 13.0 winning mark at the national masters competition, and no, not a 100 yard dash, rather the pole vault

Letters

Thanks from Iraq running of Sailin' Shoes

Jim,

I am sure that Mailie has passed on our IMMENSE appreciation for all the support, both before and now after the [Iraq 5K] race.

I only came to Colo Springs less than a year before coming over here, but the outstanding running community (as represented by PPRR) rekindled a love of running for me. It was one of my regrets that I would not be able to participate in any of the races this year...I kept meaning to get a membership, but never got around to it and then deployed. I definitely plan on signing up for a membership when I get back. I think the support that PPRR provides...both actual, in the form of races, and psychologically, in the form of the sense of community and enthusiasm, is excellent.

So I said all that to say this...thanks for everything that you do, both for the community and specifically what you did for us over here. Everyone loved it.

Thanks again

Duane K. L. France
Truckmaster, A Co

Dear Jim,

Thank you for the great coverage of the Garden Run. You certainly improved what I sent, and I liked the way you included history and what is new this year - very nicely done. Of course, one of the features you have added is "The Long Run Long Ago," which I have found very interesting as well as inspiring.

Thank you for the way you encourage so many of us through the PPRR monthly publication. I know it must involve a lot of work and effort, but it has become an outstanding and impressive little magazine. I hope to put something together about the July TCR

Summer Roundup Trail Run and get it to you soon for consideration in the July issue.

Joyce McKelvey

News from Plano

Dear Jim,

The Plano Pacers had nice cool spring weather for the May 5K and Junior Sprint. This is unusual, because summer is ordinarily here by the end of April. Late rains have kept it cool and springlike. The Pacers are not complaining.

Texas usually has a short winter and a long summer. Spring and fall, when they exist, are fleeting and irregular. One of the nice parts of visiting Colorado Springs is the privilege of seeing four distinct seasons. Combined with air that cannot be seen, it is a touch of paradise for Texas flatlanders.

I was determined to run the Dallas White Rock Marathon when I arrived in Colorado Springs on a contract. There were plenty of available places to practice, and my apartment there made the Vindicator-Centennial-Woodmen-Rockrimmon loop very convenient. The Road Runners prefer trails, and Ute Valley Park was in the neighborhood, and used to advantage. A Dallas runner on my contract told me this would build up my wind, but not my leg strength. He was correct. Breathing was so good near the end of the 1991 Marathon that a quarter-mile dash to the finish seemed right. It did demoralize a few exhausted Dallas locals. It also turned my legs to cooked spaghetti, and put me on a cane for about a week.

Regards,

William L. Jones

News and Events

July events: plenty to choose from locally

July offers quite a variety of distances and terrain for your running challenges. The Veterans Home Run 5K happens on the first Sunday at Falcon Stadium. Organizer Jim Beckenhaupt hopes for 500 runners in this "2nd Tour" to help our homeless veterans.

Mountain trail races of marathon distance seem few and far between, so Saturday July 7th is your chance to grab one at Leadville's Mosquito Pass Marathon (and "heavy" half marathon). 80% of the course is over 11,000 topping out at 13,200; on single track and dirt roads, it's rocky in spots, steep, and offers stupendous mountain and meadow scenery cruising through historic mining areas. And there are those unrivaled, well-stocked aid stations from the same folks who run the LT100.

Triple Crown of Running hosts the Summer Roundup on Sunday, July 8th. The 12K run from Bear Creek Park up High Drive and back is the 2nd event of their series. Starting elevation is about 6,170', and at the turn around point is about 7,165' on roughly half dirt road and half trail. Practice your uphill running: 1,000' elevation gain in 3.7 miles, and then pound back down.

The 5K/3K Run for Hope is a fun run/walk that takes place at Memorial Park/Prospect Lake on Saturday, July 14th at 7:00 am. The race starts and finishes next to the Velodrome and takes runners on the bicycle criterion course and also does two laps around Prospect Lake. The walk is only one lap around Prospect Lake. Water is available at the halfway point. All proceeds benefit Memorial Hospital Cancer Center Circle of Hope Fund.

Sunday, July 15th, offers a couple of mountain runs. The Barr Trail Mountain Run happens that day, offering runners a chance to run the lower half of the Pikes Peak Marathon course. The Barr Trail needs no introduction to local runners. If you're not one of the early birds who filled the race the first week of May, you can still volunteer (runpikespeak.com).

Another option for frustrated Barr Trail competitors is the High Mountain Institute 25/50K which is also held on July 15th. Run one or two laps around Leadville's Turquoise Lake and over Sugarloaf Pass. Except for a mile or two of pavement, the route is all single track and picks up the Colorado Trail up the north side of Sugarloaf. This section is beautiful, but steep (there's a reason why the LT100 avoids it!). Not to be outdone, the reverse course on the second lap offers the infamous Powerline to ascend. Proceeds benefit the worthy education efforts of the High Mountain Institute (hminet.org).

Other events include the Palmer Lake 4th of July 4M, the Women's Distance Festival 5K on July 21st, Grand Prix's Classic 10K on the 28th, and the mid-week Paint Mines 6K on the 24th (Tuesday).

Record falls in venerable Comrades Marathon

This year's 82nd Comrades Marathon saw a new record performance by winner Leonid Shvetsov, 38, breaking the 21-year-old mark and winning the 55.5 mile (89.3K) event in 5 hours, 21 minutes (a 5:47 pace). He received $28,000 as his reward! Over 12,000 participated in the venerable ultra.

The Comrades Marathon is the world's oldest and largest ultramarathon run between the South Africa cities of Pietermaritzburg and the coastal city of Durban. The direction of the race alternates each year between the "up run" starting from Durban and the "down run" starting from Pietermaritzburg. The winner of the first Comrades Marathon, in 1921, was Bill Rowan. He completed the 90 km race in 8 hours and 59 minutes.

Unfortunately, this year's race saw the deaths of runners Willem Malapi (48) and Michael Gordon (34). First-time runner Gordon died of a heart attack at the finish line. Malapi, despite having 14 runs under his belt, died after collapsing 500m from the finish from an electrolyte imbalance.

Local trail runners make San Juan solstice

A brave few headed down to Lake City for this year's San Juan Solstice, undeterred by the prospect of large snow fields. As it turned out, there were some to be reckoned with, but Jon Teisher would gladly have traded more snow for the food poisoning-like symptoms that beset throughout the race. "That sure ain't a good course to have a bad day on," he moaned.

Toughing it out, an ailing Jon Teisher looks for some refreshing relief at the San Jaun Solstice.

No one came close to Matt Carpenter's record this year, but there were a couple of sub-9 hour times. Jon reported these local results:

Rick Hessek 10:20
Scott Jaime 10:34
Paul Sullivan 10:43
Brian Fisher 11:05
Rich Muzzy 13:05
Bill Ransom 14:09
Laura Kelecy 14:18
Tom Kelecy 14:18
Jonathan Veteto 14:18
Gordon Barnett 15:00
Jon Teisher 15:41

What's the planet's biggest race?

Do you know? Bet not. But if you keep up with Running USA's Road Running Information Center, you'll get your fill of race stats. The center is a national non-profit of "various entities that, together, make up the sport and activity of running". Its ambitious mission is "to serve and facilitate the growth of all aspects and entities of running and its health and fitness benefits."

The organization keeps stats on races like the largest running events, and what do you suppose was last year's? Not the big city marathons, but the J.P. Morgan Corporate Challenge (3.5 mi) in Frankfurt Germany, which rang up an amazing 56,000 runners. Nearly as impressive was the largest 10K: Atlanta's Peachtree Road Race with 54,500. For marathons, it was the New York, with 37,800.

Running USA puts out an annual marathon report and overview, and the 2006 version was just released. Lance Smith, a Harlem marathoner, gives a synopsis on his blog: In 1976, 25,000 individuals finished a marathon; in 2006 the number was 410,000 (world wide). Last year in the U.S., 61 marathons had at 1,000 finishers or more in contrast to 1980

when there were only 12. That same year, 10.5 percent of marathoners were women; 89.5 percent were men. In 2006, it was 40 percent women and 60 percent men.

The median age in 1980 for male marathoners was 34 and for females, 31.3. The median finishing time for men was 3:32:17 and 4:03 for women. In 2006, the median age for men was 40 for men and 35 for women, while the median time was markedly slower: 4:15:34 for men, and 4:46:40 for women.

On the other hand, the number of sub-4 hour marathoners doubled at both Boston and Chicago in the past decade. Roughly 30% of all marathoners can break 4 hours, and of that statistic, 76% were male.

A record five marathons had over 30,000 finishers last year. The New York City Marathon had 37,866, Chicago (37,866), Flora London (33,237), Paris (30,739) and Berlin (30,118). The largest U.S. marathons in 2006 were New York City, Chicago, Honolulu, Marine Corps and City of Los Angeles. In fact, the U.S. is home to seven out of 15 of the world's largest marathons. For more tidbits, see the website at runningusa.org.

No enduring the WS 100 for local ultra runners

Nikki Kimball repeated her victory and posted a record 2nd best time at the Western States 100. She ran it in 18:12, second all time only to Ann Trason. There was little drama as she and male winner Hal Koerner lead throughout. The two local runners who made it past the lottery did not fare well. Tom Selke dropped at mile 43 and former champ Herb Tanzer was on a sub-24hr pace until suddenly slowing and eventually dropping after 15:35 at mile 62. A finish would have earned Herb a 1000-mile buckle.

I recently had the opportunity to sit down with one of our local runners, Steve Abeyta and his daughter Tori at Colorado Running Company. Steve did the Boston Marathon after qualifying in his first marathon, the Ft. Collins Old Town Marathon last May. As you know, our winter weather was not really conducive to outdoor training, so Steve did a lot on the treadmill.

Steve's family was not able to make the trip with him to Boston, but he had friends from the Boston area who were able to join him. He had heard of the Wellesley College cheering tunnel, but was still not prepared when he was able to hear the roar two hills away. He said that had to be his favorite section of the race. Even though it was cold and wet, Steve was thrilled to be able to do Boston. He finished with a time of 3:24:03.

The trails around Colorado Springs are still Steve's favorites. He enjoys doing the Garden 10 Miler, the Summer Round-Up Trail Run and the Ascent. To train for these terrific local races, Steve's favorite trails are the Garden of the Gods, Section 16, Waldo Canyon and Barr Trail.

When not doing his own training, Steve coaches the Land Sharks Running Club at Mountain View Elementary where his daughter and son run. If you listen to Tori, you can tell that she is excited to be following in her dad's footsteps.

Get Ready to Run the Roundup

by Joyce McKelvey

The Summer Roundup Trail Run 12K is the second leg of the Triple Crown of Running series. The eighth running of the SRTR will be held Sunday, July 8, 2007, at 7 a.m. beginning in Bear Creek Park. The course uses trails in the Park and up to High Drive, making it a challenging trail running experience in itself as well as excellent training for the upcoming Pikes Peak Ascent and Marathon. The course confronts runners with nearly a 1,000-foot gain in elevation. It is mostly uphill going out and downhill on the way back, starting at 6,170 feet and turning around at 7,165 feet. Under the leadership of co-race directors, Dave Balzer and Pat Lockhart, the Summer Roundup Trail Run has gained a status of its own and is now part of the Trail Runner's 2007 Trophy Series, a number of registered races in the United States and Canada. Registration for this Pikes Peak area run is at the Triple Crown of Running office, 514 El Paso Boulevard in Manitou Springs (719/473-2625), or at www.summerroundup.com.

Perhaps not as well known or long established as the other two legs of the Triple Crown of Running, the second leg has had its own colorful past and sometimes troubled years. In 1982 the Triple Crown of Running series was started when the winners of the series were determined by combining runners' times from the Garden of the Gods Ten Mile, the Colorado Springs Classic 10K, and the Ascent or ascent portion of the Pikes Peak Marathon. What may have been an exciting beginning, however, was followed by years which brought problems because of loss of sponsorships and the need to change the second-leg course in order to comply with city requests to move the event off main streets. This resulted in a few years with no July run at all.

In 1999 The Pikes Peak Road

Runners agreed to assist the TCR resurrect a July running event for the Triple Crown series. Dave Sorenson, Bill Bennett, Bill Gallegos and John Moha worked with then TCR President Dave Zehrer to develop the Summer Roundup Trail Run 12K, staged in July, 2000, at the Penrose Equestrian Center, running along Monument Creek to Colorado College and then back through Bear Creek. This brought renewed excitement back to the Triple Crown of Running.

In 2002 the Roundup Trail Run had to alter its course because of a summer storm resulting in too much water under Bijou Street, but a more serious change occurred in 2004 when the Equestrian Center was not available. The event was moved to begin at the Bear Creek Park pavilions, running west to and up High Drive. Unfortunately the next year the pavilions were not available, so that the Roundup was again moved in 2005, this time to Cheyenne Mountain High School, and run on the Stratton Open Space. In 2006 the Roundup Trail Run was moved back to Bear Creek Park, where it will be held again this year.

Sponsors of the Summer Roundup Trial Run include Colorado Springs Utilities, Gatorade, the Colorado Institute of Massage Therapy, Emergicare Medical Clinics and the Clarion Hotel.

Undertaking the Unimaginable

The empowering effect of community

by Sherry Weddell

I first heard of the Leadville 100 from the bemused owner of a bed and breakfast in a tiny mountain town which serves as one of the race's primary aid stations. The poor man described dazed runners who were so exhausted that they had to be pushed in the right direction or they would simply miss the trail. The whole thing sounded so extreme - so utterly crazy - that I couldn't believe that rational human beings would take part. I have since found out that nearly every person—including those who now run it—reacted the same way when they first heard about the Leadville 100. Everyone thinks it is crazy until they actually witness one and experience what I have come to think of as the "Leadville Effect".

Leadville is a perfect setting for human drama, starting life as a classic, wild-west town packed with miners in search of fabulous wealth. As the highest incorporated town (10,200') nestled along the highest mountain range in North America, it is short on oxygen and long on superlatives. The steeple of the exquisite Victorian Catholic church (where the famous "Unsinkable Molly Brown" was married) is, naturally, the highest church steeple in North America.

Photo: Twenty-five year old Daryl had been killed the summer before in a white water rafting accident. His young wife of 10 months, Angela, was running the Leadville 100 in his memory. As she approached the finish, a swarm of red-shirted supporters accompanied her all the way up 6th St.

Most runners in Colorado, but surprisingly few others, are aware that every August, hundreds of athletes and company descend on Leadville and kick up its inherent drama a few notches. They come to tackle the highest ultra-marathon in North America: The Leadville Trail 100, "the race across the sky." Runners seek to cover 100 miles across a mountainous course that rises as high as 12,600 feet, and to finish within 30 hours. They begin the race with a shotgun blast in the pre-dawn darkness at 4 am on Saturday. To be counted as a "finisher" you have to run, walk, or stagger across the finish line before the final gun goes off at 10 am on Sunday. To finish on time, runners do not sleep and must run or walk all night up and down steep mountain trails in temperatures that routinely drop into the 30s. Last August, 199 runners—51% of those who started—finished on time, and that was an unusually high percentage.

Most of these finishers are not career athletes, and many have never attempted such a feat. But when a community promotes, models, and intentionally supports outstanding achievement in its members, people change. This transformation, and the extraordinary achievement that results from it, is what I mean by the “Leadville Effect”. Specifically,

- People begin to see themselves and the world differently.

- What they assumed to be “normal” and “possible” begins to change.

- As a result, “ordinary” people begin to imagine, aspire to, and accomplish extraordinary things.

Let me try to explain.

First of all, no one attempts the Leadville Trail 100 alone. The secret of the race is the very high level of community support behind each runner. There are a minimum of two supporting workers for every participant. Hundreds of people staff aid stations all day and night, handing out water, sports drink, power gels, cookies, hot potato soup and dozens of other items to all. Volunteers time the runners in and out of aid stations, weigh them and assess their condition, give them a chance to warm themselves, to change their clothing and gear, and if necessary, insist they stop before they hurt themselves. Teams on mountain bikes follow behind the runners “sweeping” the trail in the dark to make sure that all stragglers are found and no one gets lost.

In addition, most runners have their own personal team of supporters. Many have “pacers” who can run beside individual participants for all or a portion of the last 50 miles. Although not competing, pacers often run the equivalent of an ultra-marathon themselves simply to support someone else; there are no awards for pacers. Throughout the night, pacers can be heard softly talking, encouraging, challenging; making sure their runner keeps hydrated, eats enough, doesn’t get lost, and, if necessary, telling their runner when to quit. Family and friends, often wearing matching sweatshirts with mottos like “Ted’s team,” meet the runners at aid stations with specially prepared food, changes of clothing, sun block, and favorite foods. They massage and bandage battered feet, provide dry shoes and socks, and offer a stream of encouragement.

The whole drama culminates at the finish line between 9 and 10 a.m. on Sunday morning. Despite the fact that the front-runners have long since finished, the crowd just keeps getting larger and more exuberant. They know that the last hour is the most moving because so many of the late finishers are ordinary men and women who are attempting something extraordinary, perhaps for the first time in their lives. The “race across the sky” is not just for the young and extraordinarily fit. Runners in their 50’s and 60’s complete it every year. Finishing Leadville is not primarily about speed; it is about courage and heart and the power of community.

At the finish line last year, I could not help but notice a large support team of perhaps 40 people all dressed in brilliant scarlet t-shirts. On the back of each shirt was the phrase “already finished.” I was intrigued and asked a couple of the team members whom they were supporting. They pointed to the writing on the front of their shirts: “In loving memory of Daryl Bogenrief.” Twenty-five year old Daryl had been killed the summer before in a white water rafting accident. His young wife of 10 months, Angela, was running the Leadville 100 in his memory. A few minutes later, word spread among the team that she was two miles away with only an hour remaining. Instantly, Angela’s army set off to meet her.

I waited by the finish line. The minutes passed. One

One of the many creative expressions of support found on the more accessible portions of the Leadville 100 course. Without the huge community of friends, runners, and volunteers, many would never attempt the challenge.

The Nielson Memorial in Monument Park, commemorating Larry Nielson, marks the start of the monthly handicap race.

The Nielson Challenge handicap race takes place the first Saturday of each month in North Monument Valley Park in downtown Colorado Springs, directly west of the Fontenero access, at 8:00 in the morning. Runners compete against their own previous best times. See www.pprun.org/events/Nielson/main.htm for a map and more information.

It was an absolutely beautiful day with temps in the mid 50s and rising to the low 60s. The skies were clear with no wind. This brought out a large crowd, 78 total, 28 of which were Nielson newbie runners.

The most improved for the month went to one of youngsters, Jessalyn Rombocos, as she was a whopping 3 1/2 minutes better than her handicap. That is outstanding. Jessalyn left before we could get a shirt to her, so please get one from us next time, Jessalyn.

Many runners were under their handicap this month, as the warmer weather really helps to get the speed going. We are getting a large mix of runners, from young (grade schoolers) to just a bit older (70s), with several families coming out to participate. This is exactly what the Nielson Challenge is about. We'll see you all again next month.

by one, runners crossed, often running hand-in-hand for the last 100 yards with the spouses, children, and friends who had made their achievement possible. Grizzled, grey-haired men broke down and wept in joy and relief within seconds of finishing. Each one was cheered vigorously by the hundreds of on-lookers who had by this time formed a kind of human tunnel around the finish. But I kept my eye on the ridge of the last hill, looking for signs of Angela.

Then I saw it: a scarlet phalanx formed at the crest of the hill a quarter mile away and began to march steadily towards us. As the group drew closer, I could see that they had formed a solid, cheering, human wall around a young woman with long brown hair. Angela's pacer was beside her. Her friends were carrying all her gear but a single water bottle, freeing her up to focus on one thing alone: finishing. Angela was limping but her face was radiant, as she crossed the line 18 minutes before the final gun went off.

Then I saw it: a scarlet phalanx formed at the crest of the hill a quarter mile away, and began to march steadily towards us. As the group drew closer, I could see that they had formed a solid, cheering, human wall around a young woman with long brown hair.

After 40 miles of running through the night, this pacer's job is done. Although unrecognized by the crowds, runners know the value of their support and desperately try to find their own pacers. rience has stayed with me because it has such obvious implications for changing our world. I know many "Angela's"—men and women who are doing astonishing things for mankind because, and only because, they have the active, sustained, enthusiastic support of a community: encouraging souls who provide their own Leadville Effect.

Most people are not innovators but will respond to visible and obvious alternatives directly in front of them. When one is surrounded by others who constantly discuss, model, and value personal success, and where "How do I become all that I can be?" is a commonly asked question, then people change. The bar of their imagination, of what they can conceive of as "normal" and "possible" for an ordinary person, is raised to a whole new level. We do our best, in running and in life, only when we do it together.

Alex Hoag Race for Sunshine

by Sally Sever

Saturday May 12, 2007 was a beautiful day for the Seventh running of the Alex Hoag Run for Sunshine. With the weather in the high sixties and low seventies as the day progressed, it was a perfect day for the run. Security Service Field was a lively place to be as the largest race to date for the Alex Run took to the streets to support the Proteus Syndrome Foundation. Runners from all over the state, and many from out of state, came out to enjoy a day that was filled with fun for all.

The racing events began with the 3rd running of the Mizuno Mile. The top 3 male and female finishers each received a free pair of Mizuno running shoes. This year's race was a true "Battle of the Ages", with award winners ranging from 9 to 46 years old.

The main event started at 8:30 am as the gun went off for the Alex Hoag Run for Sunshine 5K race. The field of 600 runners began their run down Tutt Boulevard on the USATF certified course. The gradual down hill kept their legs moving for a fast opening mile. At the turnaround, the Talking Tree's African Drummers gave the runners a great beat to send them back to the stadium and finish line. The water station was staffed by Jenkins Middle School Student Counsel who provided water to those who needed it and encouragement to all. The final leg of the course brought runners into Security Service Field and around the warning track where runners could hear their names being announced by DJ Wayne Theurer with Dance Party Productions. He also kept everyone in the stadium hopping and the runners running to lively music throughout the day.

2007 proved to be a very fast race with 11 new age group and 1 overall course record being set. Derek Kite of Colorado Springs was the men's winner with a time of 15:20. Stephanie Jones was the top female with a time of 18:19, improving her previous course record by 23 seconds.

The team competition had a field of thirteen different teams. The Runners Roost took first place, with the CRC Men and New Balance Skirts teams finishing second and third.

In the Middle School Challenge, Jenkins Middle School continued their domination of the Participation Award with 16 finishers. Newcomer Discovery Canyon had a very successful debut, winning the Fastest Team Award with a time of 1:41:45.2.

As the 5K wrapped up, the nearly 100 kids hit the field for the Children's Sunshine Run. After the warm-ups were complete, they put their toe on the line to race Sox the Fox. As they rounded the Security Service Field on the warning track, they all enjoyed the liveliness of the stadium. An enthusiastic crowd and proud parents cheered them on. All of the finishers went home with blue ribbons, an impressive goody bag, and an Elope hat.

The Colorado Springs Fire Fighters kept the sausage sizzling and the pancakes flipping at the Pancake Breakfast. Racers and spectators enjoyed a great breakfast as they watched the post race ceremonies.

This year, the awards were the best yet! Donated by Artful Adventures, the ceramic baseball trophies were hand painted by friends and family of Alex. Each award winner also received a gift from various community businesses. From gift cards to beautiful basket arrangements, each of the prizes was a huge hit.

This year the Alex Run raised over $45,000 for the Proteus Syndrome Foundation, founded by Kim Hoag to combat the disease which claimed Alex's life at 9 y.o. We would like to thank each and every business and individual community member that supports the Alex Hoag Run for Sunshine. Without you, our fight to find a cure for Proteus Syndrome and help those children who currently suffer from the effects for PS could not go on. We look forward to seeing everyone next year!

Sailin' Shoes Makes it to the Mideast

by Duane France

This year, Sailin' Shoes had a counterpart in Iraq. Runners there received shirts and other race supplies from local organizers.

That was some GREAT fun. I honestly can't remember the last time I felt this good...the runners had a great time, the event went off without a hitch, and I cannot even begin to thank you enough for all of the support that you and the crew have given us!!!

The race started at 0605 Iraq time, which was actually 8 P.M. the night of the 15th for you. The sun was just coming up, and the weather was a relatively cool 87 degrees; by the end of the race the temperature may have met about 92, but the heat here is not like the heat there (verydry) and it was perfect running weather (for Iraq).

We had over 100 runners register, and had at least that many run; there were 81 "official" finishers, those that had registered before the race and had bib numbers...and there were approximately ten to fifteen "also"runners, who did not register, had no bib number, but just went out there for the fun of it.

There were representatives from four NATO countries (U.S., Britain, Poland, Italy) and all of the U.S. Armed Services stationed on Rustamiyah (Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marines) as well as Civilian Contractors.

Runners take off at the start of Sailin' Shoes Iraq. Four NATO countries were represented.
